Dear Friends,

Thanks for joining us tonight. This has been an unusual and difficult year – and I'm delighted we can come together virtually tonight to celebrate. And we do have a lot to celebrate.

Although all of our programs look different because of COVID-19, they are all still operating and have adapted to handle the extraordinary circumstances. We've seen a huge increase in demand for some of our services and have expanded in response. After hearing about so many of our neighbors needing help meeting emergency needs, we launched a Direct Relief Fund. Participants in our programs or residents of NYCHA can access funds to cover emergency expenses such as technology needed for school, personal care items, emergency food or utility bills.

Goddard Riverside is more than the sum of our individual programs. We are a community that supports every member to achieve their goals. We are stronger together.

Now more than ever, we need the ideas and action inspired by the powerful crop of books on the shortlist for the fourth annual Goddard Riverside Stephan Russo Book Prize for Social Justice tonight. At Goddard we strive to be idea-powered and evidence-based in everything we do; books like the ones with honor with this Prize help us do our work better – and inspire us to do it with even greater commitment.

This year, for the first time, and in partnership with our friends at the Children's Book Council, we are delighted to expand the honors to books for young people. We need to raise future generations with a deep understanding of social justice. We are thrilled to recognize these books for the powerful way they make community, caring and equality real for young people.

Last but not least, we honor the commitment of everyone gathered here. Without you to serve on the board, to volunteer at events, to be here with your financial or in-kind support, Goddard could not survive. You are a cornerstone of our community – and I thank you.

Goddard Riverside and the Publishing Community: A Short History

The publishing connection to Goddard Riverside dates back to 1987, when New York was struggling with deinstitutionalization of individuals living with mental illness and a rise in homelessness. A board member reached out to a publishing executive for help supporting Goddard's homeless outreach and the Book Fair was born. In its first year, the Book Fair brought in $40,000. Soon, publishing leadership from across the industry came aboard, bringing their houses with them. Today, the industry brings in around $500,000 annually to Goddard.

In 2002, Goddard Riverside's Book Fair Committee held the first annual Book Fair Gala, an event founded to honor the long-lasting relationship between the Goddard Riverside Community Center and the publishing industry. Past honorees have included Len Riggio, Dick Robinson and Carolyn Reidy.

The publishing industry has raised over $15 million for Goddard Riverside. Supporting partners are numerous, including: Abrams, Hachette Book Group, HarperCollins, Ingram, Macmillan, W.W. Norton, Penguin Random House, Scholastic, Simon & Schuster and Workman. Esteemed writers such as Maya Angelou, Robert Caro, Mary Higgins Clark, and Paul Krugman have taken part in readings and private fund-raising dinners supporting Goddard Riverside programs. We hope this longstanding and very special relationship between publishing and Goddard Riverside will continue for years to come.

Goddard Riverside Invests In People to Strengthen Community

What is Goddard Riverside? It can be hard to answer that succinctly, because our programs range from preschool to Senior Centers – and from a children’s arts conservatory to intensive mobile mental health care and homeless outreach. To make things a little simpler, we organize our work into the five cause areas below.

Preparing Children and Youth for Success

Our programs for children actually support the whole family. When parents can rely on affordable, enriching environments for their children from Early Childhood on, they’re able to work and invest in their children’s futures. We’re also here for families when children need a little extra support, such as tutoring with Star Learning Center to succeed in school. Learning to Work, helps high schoolers finish school and move on to a job or further education, while our Options Center helps young people get into college – and get their first job once they graduate. All these programs work together to help children and youth thrive, contribute positively and to be prepared for the next stages of their lives.

Promoting Behavioral Health and Wellness

Due to the stigma they face in our society, many people living with mental illness tend to isolate themselves. Our programs help them break through that isolation and connect with community. The ACT Team is a mobile clinic that serves people with severe mental illness. The TOP Clubhouse, TOP Opportunities and Green Keepers help people move along a path to greater skills and stronger networks, eventually leading to full-time work and reintegration with the community. Goddard Riverside supports Individuals experiencing behavioral health challenges to maximize their abilities and reach their fullest potential.

Strengthening Families and Communities

These programs empower people to raise their voices – to fight for their rights, express themselves artistically, or both. Our Community Arts program hosts an intensive summer Performing Arts Conservatory for youth, plus a year-round schedule of arts performances and classes. The Resource Center helps people secure the government benefits they’re qualified for and advocate for the needs of the community; the Law Project educates, organizes and represents tenants facing eviction or harassment. Programs like these help families and communities advocate, lead, leverage resources and become self-directed and thriving.

Supporting Housing for All and Fighting Homelessness

Goddard Riverside pioneered many of the most effective approaches to ending homelessness. We were among the first organizations to establish street outreach teams, who help people move from chronic homelessness to permanent housing. Today we are one of three nonprofits that work together to provide homeless outreach to all of Manhattan. We also launched one of the first supportive housing programs in New York City – providing housing with built-in assistance to help people transition to life indoors and begin to heal from the damage done by years on the street. This fall, we’ve expanded to also offer transitional housing, providing immediate shelter to help people come in from the streets. We will keep working until all New Yorkers in need have stable and affordable housing leading to overall wellbeing and independence.

Enriching the Lives of Older Adults

Studies show that most older adults want to live in their own homes. We help people “age in community” to reduce the risk of isolation and loneliness. Our Senior Centers, senior housing and Naturally Occurring Retirement Communities (NORCS) offer recreation, learning opportunities, meals and other support to help people stay active and healthy. Our programs help older adults experience an optimal quality of life and stay connected in the community.

We envision a world where communities are fair and just and people have the resources and tools to create healthy, safe and thriving lives.
